Standards Documents Obtained/Consulted Thus Far:

NP 1796: 1988

On the limit values of exposure to toxic substances in the air of workplaces. (This standard is mentioned by the Portuguese legislation on hygiene and safety at the workplace.)

NP 2199 and NP 2266

These two standards relate to the collection of air for analysis.

The relevant Portuguese agency will not release copies of these documents to a requestor in the UK except in response to an enquiry routed through the British Standards Institution.

Repeated attempts have thus far not produced a response; the latest word from the BSI is that the documents will not be available for several weeks. It may be more efficient to obtain these and any other relevant documents by means of a direct enquiry through the national market in Portugal.
